

The image shows the front entrance of a three-story red brick townhouse. The entrance features a wide set of light-colored stone steps leading up to a wooden double door with decorative panels and a small transom window. The door is framed by a grey stone surround. To the left of the steps is a small garden bed with green plants and white flowers. To the right is a small window with a grey stone lintel. The house has several other windows, some with grey stone lintels. A blue price tag is in the top right corner, and a 'PENDING' tag is below it.

Description

A classic bow-front town house on one of the South End's prettiest blocks, renovated top to bottom while keeping the original staircase and marble mantels. Four finished levels, a chef's kitchen opening onto a private patio, and a full-width primary suite with bay windows over the street trees.
